NOVEMBER 2015

E is for ... Exhibitions.

There are a few photographic exhibitions on at the moment, including two locally, that are worth making the effort to visit. Albury aerial photographer, David Taylor, has an exhibition titled “Shooting at Shadows on Lake Hume” at GIGS Gallery on Gateway Island. Over three days in June this year, David Taylor flew his four-seater Glasair Sportsman aircraft over Lake Hume, which at the time was at about 30% capacity, to photograph the beauty of the lake: its snake-like channels, skeletal fence lines and red clay of the exposed lake bed. For more examples of his work go to his website: dtaylorphotos.com, or better still get to GIGS before the 30th November.

Meanwhile at MAMA (Murray Art Museum Albury) there will be an exhibition by Bathurst artist Nicole Welch titled “Eastern Interiors: From Bathurst to Albury”. It follows the pathways of the early explorers, eg. Thomas Mitchell and William Hovell, from Bathurst through to Albury. Nicole Welch refers to their journals and uses the language the explorers and early settlers used to describe the landscape.

An excellent Christmas gift or personal keepsake. $20 each. You will need to be quick – there was a limited print run and very few remain unsold.

She believes those early descriptions influence our present-day relationship with the country. Nicole Welch works in bushland creating installations using historical objects, such as an antique mirror to draw attention to the role of history in our understanding of today. The exhibition runs from 12 November to 13 December and is presented in partnership with the Brenda May Gallery, Sydney.

If you happen to be in Sydney during November consider a visit to the State Library of NSW to view an exhibition of images showcasing the 2015 finalists in the Nikon-Walkley Awards for Excellence in Photojournalism.

These awards recognise the work of photographers across a range of genres: news, sport, portraiture and photographic essays.

In selecting the finalists, judges looked for newsworthiness, impact, creativity and technical skill. The exhibition runs through to 29 November.

Albury Show

Congratulations to all those who entered the Photographic section of the Albury Show – 137 entries is outstanding! Well done to the winners and a huge vote of thanks to Albury Show Co-ordinator, Debbie Shepherd, and her band of helpers.

AGM

The November meeting will incorporate the WACC AGM. Our club has been enjoying considerable success in recent years. This has been due to a hardworking committee, but the departure of a number of committee members throughout the year means that there is an opportunity for fresh blood to invigorate the committee. Nominate now! Bring your ideas and enthusiasm and be part of the committee that will see WACC develop and grow.
